Alexa's Biography

The injustice that personal injury victims and people with disabilities can face is what attracted Alexa to this area of practice. She is passionate about helping others, and personal injury and disability law allows her to advocate for people in what can be their darkest times. Alexa is proud to be part of the personal injury team at McKenzie Lake Lawyers.

Alexa completed her undergraduate studies at Western University in Political Science and was honoured to attend Osgoode Hall Law School to complete her Juris Doctor degree. During her time at Osgoode she had the opportunity to work with the Barbra Schlifer Commemorative Clinic, which provides legal services and advocacy for women who have experienced violence. Through Alexa's education at Osgoode, and her life experiences, she has learned that kindness, compassion, and fairness are the foundation of a strong community, all of which are values that she strives to instill in her practice.

Alexa is a passionate animal advocate and vegan, and knows that small changes in perspective can lead to fundamental shifts in thinking. When thinking about any problem, legal or otherwise, perspective matters, and getting an effective result
