Kevin's Biography

Kevin is an experienced Personal Injury lawyer and has a strong interest in finding solutions for those who have suffered a personal injury. In addition to the more traditional areas of personal injury law, his recent legal work has brought him to the emerging area of “Charter Torts”. He first became involved with seeking remedies under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms following the 2009 homicide death of an inmate at the Elgin Middlesex Detention Centre.

Prior to practicing law, Kevin had extensive experience in management of a large national Corporation. He also owned and operated a number of small businesses. The broad range of experience and perspective he now brings to the table as a lawyer is a real benefit to his clients.

A student of history and genealogy, Kevin is proud to trace his family roots in law and academics as far back as 12 centuries ago, to the ancient universities and the hereditary “brehon” lawyers of Ireland. Kevin feels an inherent attachment to the law and a passion for the good it can do. Since 2008, he has been an elected Deputy Chieftain of the Egan Clann. He very much enjoys continuing in the family tradition at McKenzie Lake Lawyers LLP.

LAWYERS

Kevin strongly believes that those who can, ought to give back to their community. For the past several years he has been actively involved in coaching and managing minor sports within the City of London. He served seven terms as the President of the London Junior Knights Hockey Association, the elite level for competitive minor hockey within the city and now its active Past President. Kevin remains keenly interested in providing programs and other assistance so that young people have an opportunity to develop their skills and their character through sport.
