Lauren's Biography

Lauren Cullen practices personal injury and disability law. She handles all aspects of plaintiff-side litigation, including tort and accident benefit claims.

Originally from Manitoba, Lauren has practiced exclusively personal injury litigation since graduating from the University of Western Ontario. Lauren gained experience at a boutique litigation firm in Toronto before returning to London, which she has made her home over the past several years. Lauren enjoys the close London community and maintains connections with treatment providers, fellow lawyers, and community support workers.

During law school, Lauren was a supervisor at Community Legal Services. Through the clinic, Lauren saw firsthand the value of providing individuals with access to justice. Lauren has since dedicated her career to helping individuals succeed, both through her formal practice and volunteer endeavours. Lauren is actively involved in Red Shoe Society committees, which raise money for Ronald McDonald House Charities. She is also a strong advocate for plaintiff rights and frequently contributes articles to the Ontario Trial Lawyer's Association.
