Sue's Biography

Sue Noorloos gained experience as an estate planner, working with both individuals and business owners at Scotia Wealth Management. Additionally, Sue sat as a Vice-Chair for the Workplace Safety and Insurance Appeals Tribunal (WSIAT). Beginning her career in personal injury litigation has afforded Sue an in-depth appreciation for the unique estate and incapacity planning required for families who support a loved one with a disability. Sue also practices in the area of estate administration.

Sue's approach is the same whether she is gardening or helping her clients with estate planning or estate administration; she takes a hands-on and pro-active approach. Sue's responsibility is to identify the legal "weeds" and eliminate them before they become obstacles. A carefully crafted estate plan or business succession plan brings the same sense of satisfaction and peace of mind as a well-tended garden.

Outside of the office, Sue enjoys gardening, canning, and cooking. Travelling and reading are also two of her favorite past-times. Sue is an empty-nester but attends her daughters' dance recitals and violin concerts as often as possible.
